Mark has enjoyed a career, spanning more than 30 years, and has held senior management roles in the US and the UK. A physics and electronics graduate of the University of Exeter, he spent 14 years working in the fire detection industry at Honeywell before joining Record UK and the automatic door industry in 2017. He lives in the Midlands with his wife, Kim and has one grown-up daughter.

Of his 2017 appointment to lead Record UK, Mark said: "I wanted to work in a different industry after 14 years in fire safety. It is not totally unrelated, as both involve products with safety standards for commercial buildings. I was also keen to run a smaller business because I'm very people centric".

He continued: "I am honoured to take on the role of ADSA Chair and build on the great work that has been achieved in recent years. ADSA has come on leaps and bounds in both professionalism and the impact it's having in the industry. Ken Price as Managing Director has a lot to do with this and I'm really looking forward to working with him to continue this progress."

"I hope that my experience will help ADSA become even stronger. Having been a board member of FIA (Fire Industry Association), I know how this long-established association developed to create one voice for the fire industry. I think there's the same opportunity for ADSA in the automatic door industry."

ADSA Managing Director Ken Price, said that he looked forward to working with Mark as Chair. Mark is held in high esteem as a leader within the automatic door industry. He has a remarkable mind, eye for detail and considerable experience within the wider engineering and construction industry. Ken also went on to express his sincere thanks to Paul Wright of dormakaba for his work as Chairman over the last 2 years.

Well done and thanks to you both!
